

Appearing in Mslexia is one of the best ways onto the publishing ladder. Women writers are invited to submit material on one of our themes, which change every quarter (see below); or to send work on any subject for our many other submission slots. For regular updates to these guidelines, visit mslexia.co.uk/submit. If you have any questions, please email postbag@mslexia.co.uk, or call the office on 0191 204 8860.

SHORT STORY

1st prize: £3,000
Judge: Irenosen Okojie

FLASH FICTION

1st prize: £500
Judge: Kathy Fish

Deadline: 30 September 2019

Features

We also always welcome ideas for one-off features, and entries are considered on a rolling basis. Send us 200-word proposal, plus a brief CV and a published or unpublished example of your writing.

'For the love it'

This is a series on the writing we do with no expectation of it being published. Previous subjects have included writing bedtime stories with your child, transcribing old letters, and nature writing. Do you write plays for your local school? A memoir on behalf of your grandfather? If you would like to tell our readers about the writing you do for the love of it, let us know. Please send a pitch of up to 200 words, a brief CV, and a short published or unpublished sample of your writing. As with features, these pitches are considered on a rolling basis.

Showcase - themed writing

Twice annually we ask for themed poetry and prose submissions for the Showcase (previously New Writing) section of the magazine. Winners are selected by our Guest Editors (in the past these have included Julia Blackburn, Nicci Gerrard, Pascale Petit, Rachel Cusk and Sarah Dunant) and are published in the magazine.

Our next themes will be announced soon. Please check back.

Mslexia welcomes previously unpublished submissions from women writers for every part of the magazine. For more information including what we pay and up-to-date deadlines, plus competitions, workshops and Mslexia news visit mslexia.co.uk/submit, phone 0191 204 8860 or email postbag@mslexia.co.uk. Please note if submissions do not fit in with our current themes they cannot be considered for publication.

Send submissions to submissions@mslexia.co.uk or Mslexia, PO Box 656, Newcastle upon Tyne NE99 1PZ

For subscribers only

Flash challenge: 'heat' A fictional narrative nugget on the theme of 'heat', in any prose style. It must tell a complete story. Don't forget to check out the forthcoming Issue 83 for judge Meg Pokrass's theme-related writing exercise! (Max. 250 words)

Poetry challenge: Pastoral / ecopoems Send us your nature poetry. Pastoral poems traditionally present an idealistic view of rural life, while ecopoetry takes on examinations of the natural world from an environmental standpoint. We'll accept either form, and experiments in bridging the gap between the two – just make sure your poem is no longer than 40 lines. (Subscribers only)

Limerick Challenge Limericks on any topic, to appear in the monthly Mslexia subscriber newsletter little ms (submission details can be found in little ms).

Flash Fiction 100-word piece inspired by an image in the Mslexia monthly newsletter little ms.

If you don't already receive our monthly e-newsletter little ms – packed full of writing inspiration and lively literary debate – all you have to do is subscribe to Mslexia. For more info visit mslexia.co.uk or call us 0191 204 8860.

Other submissions

P is for... A piece of creative nonfiction inspired by a single alphabet prompt (e.g. H is for Hawk) Current letter: P. Max 300 words.

First page surgery Send us the title and first page of your novel (any genre, up to 300 words). Our guest industry expert will comment, in the magazine, about how might it be changed to catch an agent's or editor's eye. (Use a pen name if you're feeling shy.) [Unpaid.]

Bedtime stories A submission slot for short stories written to be read aloud to a child at bedtime. They can be on any subject, but no more than 250 words, please.

Poet Laureate Imagine you are the Poet Laureate, whose task it is to respond poetically to news items and/or issues of topical importance. The actual subject matter is up to you, though we encourage you to think outside the box – local news as well as world news. Your poem must be no more than 14 lines long, please, and ideally we'd also like a link to the topic/news item you have chosen.

Pitch perfect Send us a pitch (pithy description – 100 words max) for a project you're planning to submit to an agent, editor or producer. The project might be a memoir, biography, fiction, theatre or screenplay. Our guest industry expert will suggest ways to make it spark the interest of the people you need to impress. (Use a pen name if you're feeling shy.) [Unpaid]

Life sentence One sentence only, please, and no more than 25 words, describing one interesting/poignant/bizarre/uplifting thing that's happened in your writing life recently. [Unpaid]

Humblebrags Big up your writing (and writing-life) achievements! Tackling a public speaking phobia or a writing block can be just as significant as a prize shortlisting, so if you are listing a publication, please tell us something about the challenges you faced along the way. Limited to 75 words please.

Submitting your work

Please use the online submissions form where possible - but you can send all other submissions by post or by email, wherever you are in the world. If emailing, please put 'P is for...', 'First page surgery', etc. in the subject line, as appropriate, and send to submissions@mslexia.co.uk. If you're submitting work to multiple topics, (e.g. life sentence and pitch perfect) please send each one in a separate email.

Deadline for possible inclusion in the December 2019 Issue (84): 7 October 2019

Payment

We usually pay £25 for each piece published in Mslexia (except for 'Life sentences'; 'Humblebrags'; or 'Pitch perfect' and 'First-page surgeries', where you'll receive feedback on your work).

Response times

We aim to email the writers whose work has been selected within three months of any submission deadline (this does not include competitions).

We do not return hard copies of your work, or send copies of competition results.

Please make sure you include your land address, telephone number and email address with your submissions so that we can process it.
